Phillip Landolt
Senior Lecturer
University of Geneva Law Faculty
Switzerland

Phillip is a part-time Senior Lecturer at the University of Geneva Law Faculty.

Phillip Landolt is an experienced international arbitration and dispute settlement practitioner. Although his focus is on counsel and co-counsel work, he also accepts appointments as an arbitrator. Over the last several years, Phillip's international arbitration practice has been focussed on large infrastructure projects, sale of goods and related contracts (bank guarantees, letters of credit, charterparties, etc.), distribution, agency and consulting contracts, and disputes in the telecoms sector such as under VoIP interconnection and GSM roaming contracts.

Called to the bar in Geneva, as well as in England & Wales and Ontario, Canada, in each of which jurisdictions he has also practised, Phillip is able to offer a fusion of expertise in civil law and common law practice and techniques. Clients appreciate Phillip's ability to understand their dispute resolution goals and his advice and representation in achieving these goals as efficiently as possible. Phillip's mother tongue is English and he works in French, German and Italian as well.
